Sandy Lake-area clearcutting to go forward

Legal loophole.

Residents protest developer's decision, but HRM's hands tied

The municipal councillor for Bedford says a loophole in HRM's planning regulations has allowed a developer to legally clearcut hundreds of acres of land near Sandy Lake.

Coun. Tim Outhit said Armco Communities hasn't applied for a development permit for the property off Hammonds Plains Road, and so isn't bound by any municipal laws.

"It was quite a surprise to me and some of my colleagues ... when we figured out it didn't apply until the development process began."

A handful of area residents gathered at the site Thursday to protest the clearcutting, saying it's jeopardizing "fragile" land.

"Sandy Lake is an absolutely beautiful pristine lake," said Karen Robinson, adding it's on HRM's list of future regional parks. "We've asked them in meetings and phone calls to stop the cutting nearest the lake."

Outhit said both HRM and provincial officials say the company is following "good logging processes" — but he said it's still a baffling decision.

"I certainly have told them in person and in writing that I think they're making a mistake turning the community against them," he said.

Armco's website states the land is being cleared so that development can begin as soon as the city's planning process is complete.

"Areas for cutting have been assessed and any potential wetlands have been carefully delineated to ensure these lands are not disturbed," states the site.

Armco's vice-president of sales said the company is staying in touch with the community. "We met with them, we told them we would meet with them as the planning progress continues," said Chris Fourgnaud.

Outhit said closing the loophole could happen as part of the five-year review of the Regional Plan.

"That's one way to deal with it, but of course that would be for going forward," he said. "That wouldn't be retroactive."

Man with violent past wanted on warrant

Halifax police's High Risk Enforcement Action Team is asking for the public's help locating a man who hasn't been seen since leaving a halfway house in Halifax at the beginning of the month.

Jerome Morton, 26, was recently paroled from prison. Since leaving a halfway house on Aug. 1, police say investigators have been unable to locate him.

Police believe he remains in Nova Scotia, possibly in the Truro area.

Const. Tracy MacDonald of HRP said Morton has a violent past and people should use caution if they come in contact with him.

Mic Mac Mall pulls 'sexist' ads

Back-to-school gaffe.

Apology comes after critics denounce ads for portrayal of young girls

Mic Mac Mall is apologizing after launching a series of back-to-school shopping ads that provoked a torrent of outrage from people who denounced the campaign as sexist for depicting young girls in a dim light.

The mall yanked the ads Thursday following a public backlash that reverberated on social media and even garnered the attention of popular U.S. website BuzzFeed.

"Mic Mac Mall is sincerely sorry for offending its customers," Rebecca Logan, the mall's marketing director, said Thursday in a statement.

"We've heard what our

The ads being pulled have been criticized for reinforcing harmful gender stereotypes of young girls as ditzes who only care about shopping. CONTRIBUTED customers have to say and we understand why you're angry. It was never intended to be offensive."

Logan declined requests for an interview, saying the mall would make no further comments beyond its statement.

The ad campaign, which ran for a week on radio, television, billboards and online, featured illustrations of young girls with lines like "My favourite class? Shop!" and "Mixing patterns — now that's a science!"

Another ad said: "Social studies? Does posting my new boots on Facebook count?"

The campaign generated a fierce response from people who said it reinforced gender stereotypes of young women as ditzes interested only in shopping and not education.

"I just feel like it's not really fair to portray women as the only thing they're excited about going back to school is shopping and mixing patterns," said Kierra Gallant, a 19-year-old science student at St. Francis Xavier University.

Sarah Paynter, a student at University of King's College, said she found the campaign sexist but "not shocking."

In an effort to regain customer trust, Logan said the mall plans on donating $5,000 to a yet-to-be-chosen local organization that focuses on empowering girls.

Overcrowding could harm the cat: SPCA

Take kitty. Society says wait lists are swelling

RUTH DAVENPORT
ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

The SPCA in Nova Scotia has issued an urgent appeal for help with a boom in the number of cats coming into already-crowded shelters.

The society's director of animal care said there are currently more than 1,000 cats on shelter wait-lists across the province.

"We are kind of in our second flow of kittens being born ... which is bottlenecking a lot of our resources," said Sandra Flemming Thursday. "Blah."

Although the adoption rate has climbed significantly in the last year, Flemming said that's just making more room in the shelter for other cats in need.

Flemming said the shelters are currently triaging their intake, prioritizing sick and injured animals, newborn kittens and pregnant cats — but turning away any owned animals.

She said members of the public can help with the crisis

Items shelter needs

Three most-needed items at the provincial shelter:

- Kitty litter (non-clumping)
- Wet/canned cat food
- Bleach

through donations, by adopting or by becoming a foster family.

"I think right now we are probably running around 250 in foster ... so if we didn't have that capacity, those are 250 animals that would have been refused," she said.

Foster families take animals into their home until they're adopted. The SPCA covers the cost of all supplies and any medical treatment, so it's cost-neutral to the foster family.

Flemming also said more government support is also needed to help shelters keep up with the recurring flood of felines.

"We receive zero government funding," she said. "There's just not enough government support for us to have the resources to bring all these animals in."

Appeal court. Bail bid by Halifax man imprisoned in death of infant rejected

The Nova Scotia Court of Appeal has rejected a bid for bail by a Halifax man sentenced last year to six and a half years in prison in the death of his infant daughter.

In a written decision released Thursday, Justice Peter Bryson says Ashiqur Rahman has not proven that his continued detention pending an appeal of his case is not necessary in the public interest.

Bryson says Rahman's lack of candour with the court raises concerns about his willingness to honour the conditions of an interim release.

Rahman was sentenced last August after being convicted of manslaughter and aggravated assault in the July 2009 death of seven-week-old Aurora Breakthrough.

His sentence was reduced

Teen chained in cabin

Sackville man charged in confinement case to face trial by judge and jury in March

A Sackville man charged with sexual assault in the case of a teenage boy who was chained inside a Nova Scotia cabin will go to trial in March.

John Leonard MacKean is scheduled for a three-day trial by judge and jury beginning March 17 in Bridge-

MacKean, who was not in court Thursday, is also charged with communicating for the purpose of obtaining sexual services from a person under 18.

Defence lawyer Mike Taylor said outside court that he is considering a challenge for cause — a request to dismiss a prospective juror due to concerns that the person can't be unbiased — because of the notoriety that the case has generated.

'Phenomenal' new C.P. Allen High School almost ready

Bedford West. Complex features gym, football field, art studios, learning commons

haley.ryan@metronews.ca

In two weeks, teenagers will be opening lime-green lockers, practising yoga and studying near fruit trees in the new Charles P. Allen High School in Bedford.

Terry Smith-Lamothe, an architect with the Department of Transportation and Infrastructure Renewal, showed off the building to Education Minister Ramona Jennex, school-board members and the media on Thursday.

"It really is phenomenal," CPA principal Stephanie Bird said before the tour.

"This school offers educational opportunities that either didn't exist in our previous school, or have been completely enhanced."

About 1,300 kids start on Sept. 6 and will make use of the dance/martial-arts studio, textile and nutrition labs, large gymnasium and three floors of classroom space.

The cafeteria opens onto CPA's grassy courtyard, where students can relax on boulders from the site and admire cherry trees and blueberry bushes.

"I can imagine a jazz quintet sitting down and playing music ... and entertaining people at lunchtime," Smith-

Lamothe said.

Jennex said the common areas outside each classroom are an important learning feature, where groups can work on a project while being supervised by teachers looking through a window to the hall.

Smith-Lamothe said education has moved beyond his day, where there were rows of desks, and the teacher at the front with a blackboard.

"It's a whole different kind of teaching paradigm that will be expressed in this school," he said.

About 20 per cent of the materials used in the school are recycled. These include doors made from excess wood strips, and the plastic surface beneath the gym floor made from yogurt containers.

"If you ate yogurt in the last year, you probably contributed to this floor," Smith-Lamothe said with a laugh.

Jennex said the school was finished within budget, at a cost of $37 million from the province and $11 million HRM dollars.

The school and attached community centre are at 200 Innovation Dr., just past the new BlackBerry building off Hammonds Plains Road.

Residents can use meeting rooms, a gymnasium, dance studio and the food lab for cooking classes in the centre.

"(There's) a pride factor because it is a public building. This is Nova Scotia building a building for ... its future voters, future citizens," Smith-Lamothe said. "It belongs to all of us."

Let's get reel. Teams scramble around Halifax for the second-annual 48-hour film contest

HALEY RYAN

As you walk around the city this weekend, don't be alarmed if you see groups of people dressed in strange costumes, or tearing out their hair in front of a computer screen as Starbucks closes down.

The coffee will be flowing over the next couple of days as 10 teams frantically put together a short film for the 48 Hour Film Competition.

"You're not really supposed to plan," said Nicole Steeves, who entered last year and will be acting, doing makeup and directing with her team once again.

"All week I'm thinking, Oh my God, I have no idea what we're going to do," Steeves said, "so you kind of surprise yourself with the outcome."

Stacy O'Rourke, organizer of the artsScene event, said the competition gives local filmmakers a great opportunity for exposure, and gets amateurs interested in how film works.

"We ... want to help raise that awareness and really foster that next generation of arts supporters," O'Rourke said.

To keep the playing field even, O'Rourke said each team is given a unique line of dialogue, prop and location they have to work into the film — last year one team got a Batman cape.

Best overall film wins a two-day voucher for a van filled with movie equipment, and best director and best use of props also receive a $500 rental.

They have two days to deliver a 5-8 minute movie by 7 p.m. Sunday.

"It's actually amazing, doing it in that short amount of time and having a product at all," Steeves said.

She said it's easy to get people together, and although professional cameras are harder to come by, iPhones can do a good job.

"It just depends on what level you want to work with," Steeves said.

At the same time, they hope a new study will close gaps in scientific knowledge about shark movements around Maui.

But European and American scientists say a simplified version of the procedure aimed at developing countries could be done for about 200 euros ($265 US) with generic fertility drugs and basic lab equipment that would fit inside a shoebox.

Justin Trudeau: Yes, he inhaled

And he's not apologizing. Liberal leader says marijuana prohibition policy costs law enforcement $500 million a year

Justin Trudeau says, yes, he's inhaled a few times and, yes, he was already a member of Parliament the last time he did and, no, he has no regrets about it.

The Liberal leader laid out his past marijuana use in a lengthy interview and in an exchange with reporters Thursday in which he made no apologies.

He said he's smoked pot five or six times in his life — including three years ago during a backyard get-together — and never really liked it much.

Now that he's come clean about using pot, he said, he'd like to move on and talk about the hundreds of thousands of people who have a criminal record for it.

Trudeau sought to shift the focus onto his policy of legalizing marijuana when asked by reporters about his drug use and whether it had been a mistake.

Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau answers questions from the media in Quebec City on Thursday. FRANCIS VACHON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"No, it wasn't a mistake," Trudeau told journalists in Quebec City.

"I do not consume cannabis. I am not a big consumer at all. I tried it.... I've never tried other types of hard drugs. I am not a consumer of marijuana but, yes, I've already tried it. I used it — maybe five or six times in my life."

He said he believes public opinion has moved on and he's confident that Canadians will judge him less harshly than his political opponents.

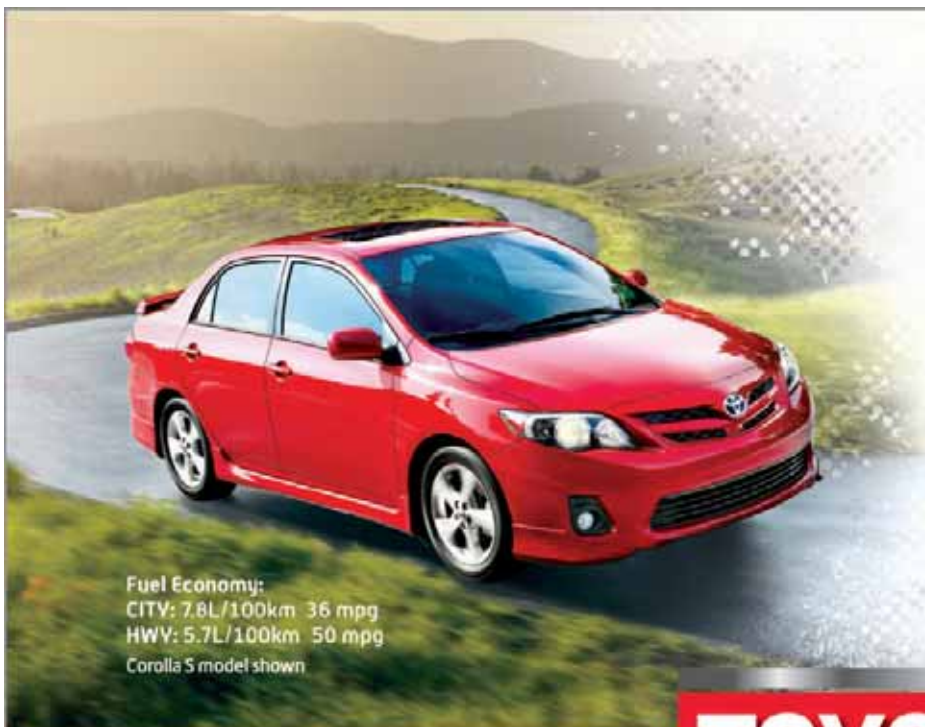

What matters now, Trudeau said, is ending a marijuana prohibition policy that he says costs law enforcement $500 million a year and has left 475,000 people with criminal records since the Conservatives took office in 2006.

He has said that issue touched his own family.

Trudeau originally made the marijuana admission in a candid interview with the Huffington Post, in which he also revealed that his youngest brother, Michel, was charged with marijuana possession shortly before his 1998 death in an avalanche.

Man convicted of human trafficking after abduction

A 23-year-old Montreal man has been convicted on human trafficking charges in Ottawa.

It's the first time someone has been convicted under human trafficking laws in the country's capital since they were added to the Criminal Code in 2005.

Jamie Byron was accused of abducting a 17-year-old Windsor, Ont., girl from her home in 2011, and forcing her to perform sexual acts on more than 100 men over a two month period.

Byron was caught by an undercover Ottawa Police officer.

He is due back in court on Sept. 6 to set a sentencing date. THE CANADIAN PRESS/CFRA

U.S. school cafeteria

Gun goes off inside kindergartner's bag

A gun went off inside a young student's backpack in a U.S. school cafeteria Thursday, but no one was hurt, officials said.

The student was a kindergartner, or about 5 years old. The child was being questioned by police and could be expelled.

A news release from the Shelby County school district said school staffers immediately took control of the backpack.

The statement said there was no evidence of harmful intent. The gun fired as students were waiting for the opening bell.

The child was detained and was being questioned by officers, with the child's mother present.

Let UN team investigate attack in Syria: Chief

Allegations. United Nations head calls on government to allow investigation into reports chemical weapons killed at least 100 people

Denial

The government has denied that it used chemical weapons, calling the allegations "absolutely baseless."

Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Thursday called on the Syrian government to allow a UN team now in Damascus to swiftly investigate an alleged chemical-weapon attack outside the capital that killed at least 100 people.

UN deputy spokesman Eduardo del Buey said Ban remains "deeply troubled" by the alleged attack on the eastern suburbs of Damascus on Wednesday and believes it needs to be investigated "without delay."

Syrian anti-government activists accused President Bashar Assad's regime of carrying out an attack using toxic gas and have reported death tolls ranging from 136 to 1,300. Even the lowest figure would make it the deadliest alleged chemical attack in Syria's two-and-a-half-year civil war.

Del Buey said the secretary-general "takes positive note" of the UN Security Council meeting Wednesday that backed his initial call for "a thorough, impartial and prompt investigation."

He said the secretary-general has been in touch with world leaders since Wednesday and is sending UN disarmament chief Angela Kane to Damascus to press for a UN investigation.

Under the terms of an agreement with Syria negotiated by Kane and chief weapons inspector Ake Sellstrom in July, the UN team can investigate three previous incidents of alleged chemical weapons use.

'I am Chelsea Manning'. WikiLeaks source wants to live life as a woman

Bradley Manning plans to live as a woman named Chelsea and wants to begin hormone therapy as soon as possible, the U.S. soldier said Thursday, a day after being sentenced to 35 years in prison for the biggest leak of classified material in U.S. history.

Manning announced the decision in a written statement provided to NBC, asking supporters to refer to him by his new name and the feminine pronoun. The statement was signed "Chelsea E. Manning."

"As I transition into this next phase of my life, I want everyone to know the real me. I am Chelsea Manning. I am a female. Given the way that I feel, and have felt since childhood, I want to begin hormone therapy as soon as possible," the statement reads. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rob Ford 'can't wait' to arm-wrestle the Hulkster

A little over the top?

Controversy-plagued Toronto mayor to take on his 'hero,' Hulk Hogan, in friendly match at city's Fan Expo

Toronto's mayor often takes on the media, but on the morning of Friday, Aug. 23, he'll face an even more intimidating opponent — his "hero," Hulk Hogan.

Rob Ford says he "can't wait" to arm-wrestle Hogan in a friendly event.

The legendary shirt-ripping wrestler will be in Toronto for Fan Expo, where he is set to hold an "uncensored" question-and-answer session on Friday evening.

But first, the 14-time wrestling champion will arm-wrestle Toronto's mayor, Ford's spokesman announced on Twitter.

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford, on arm-wrestling his "hero" Hulk Hogan

"When I was a little guy — the wrestling and stuff — it was good," Ford said.

Ford was asked about the event while at the Ontario legislature for the swearing-in ceremony of Doug Holyday, the former deputy mayor of Toronto who was recently elected as a provincial Progressive Conservative. Specifically, Ford was asked if he had seen a scene in the movie Rocky III, in which Hogan fights Rocky.

"(If) he starts swinging, I'm going, man. I'm right out the door," Ford said, laughing. "I'm not going to sit there and take him on."

Alberta woman describes surviving 12 days lost in woods

JEREMY NOLAS
Metro in Calgary

Her jaw was broken, her clothes were drenched and she was face-to-face with a bear. It was the night of July 14, the first of 12 the woman (whose name Metro is withholding because police allege she is the victim of a sexual assault), would spend lost in the bush.

According to RCMP, the woman had been sexually assaulted by a friend hours before after the truck they were travelling in became stuck on the reserve's north end. It's alleged he punched her in the face, breaking her jaw but she managed to escape.

Speaking for the first time since the incident on Thursday, the woman said she became immediately disoriented after she was hurt. Then the rain started coming down.

"I found a den," she said. "I went inside and then a bear came. She smelled me up.... I kept my eyes locked (on her), I didn't even want to blink."

The woman claims the bear then walked away but she continued to hear it nearby. By morning, it was gone.

But the ordeal was far from over. "I just kept telling myself, 'You're not going to die,'" she said. She made sure to keep her clothes dry but also hopped into the river from time to time to ride the current, a faster method of moving than by foot.

Finally, on July 26, the woman was found. She was rushed to hospital and spent weeks recovering. Even now, her jaw is not healing properly.

Still, she's just happy to be alive.

"I'll never forget the bear," she said, before adding, "I have got a second chance at life and am so grateful for that."

Teen exchanged texts, letter with mom's killer

TV interview. Hannah Anderson said she confided in James Lee DiMaggio, 40, about troubles with her mom

A California teen whose mother and brother were killed by a family friend said on national television Thursday that she once confided in the man about troubles with her mother and explained text messages exchanged on the day of the attack.

Police say James Lee DiMaggio abducted Hannah Anderson and fled to the Idaho wilderness before he was killed by authorities.

In her first interview since her dramatic rescue Aug. 10, Hannah didn't say how her family died or describe her interactions with DiMaggio during the manhunt. The girl said she wrote to DiMaggio a year ago and he guided her through a rough patch with her mother.

"Me and him would talk about how to deal with it, and I'd tell him how I felt about it, and he'd help me through it. They weren't anything bad," she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mubarak's release from jail threatens to stoke turmoil

Egypt. Decision to place former leader under house arrest instead of letting him go free designed to ease criticism

Egypt's ousted leader Hosni Mubarak was released from prison Thursday and transported to a military hospital in a Cairo suburb where he will be held under house arrest, according to state TV.

Thursday's move followed a court decision ordering the release in relation to charges of receiving gifts from a state-owned newspaper.

Despite his release, the 85-year-old ousted leader still faces retrial on charges of complicity in the killing of protesters in the 2011 uprising against him, which could put him back behind bars. He also is being investigated in two other corruption cases.

The release threatened to stoke the unrest as the Arab nation is already roiled in a crisis over a coup against Islamist leader Mohammed Morsi. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Germany. Report blames bias for delay in probe of neo-Nazi murder spree

A far-right murder spree went undetected for years because German security services made scores of errors, partially because of institutional bias against immigrants, a parliamentary investigation concluded Thursday.

The report follows a 19-month review of how police and intelligence agencies failed to stop the National Socialist Underground group from killing eight Turks, a Greek and a policewoman between 2000 and 2007.

The group was only linked to the killings after two main members died in a murder-suicide after a botched 2011 bank robbery. The third main suspect, Beate Zschaepe, went on trial in May.

Committee members said police and domestic intelligence agencies were quick to attribute the slayings to organized crime by immigrant groups — never properly considering the possibility that the killings could have been racially motivated and linked.

Official's comments unacceptable, Israel apologizes to Japan

Israel has distanced itself from a government official who made crude comments about the Second World War nuclear bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Responding to a Japanese request for clarification, a top Israeli envoy told Japan that the comments were "unacceptable" and that the official had been suspended.

Danny Seaman was a government public relations official and posted on Facebook that he was "sick" of "self-righteous" Japanese and international commemorations of Hiroshima and Nagasaki victims. He said those events were the results of "Japanese aggression."

Israeli diplomatic officials said Thursday that the clarifications were made last week. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the private diplomatic discussions with the media.

The Japanese Embassy did not return a call seeking comment.

Space station gets new telescope mount

Cosmonauts participate in a spacewalk outside the International Space Station. COURTESY NASA

Technical difficulties. Two Russian cosmonauts install a platform for a yet-to-be-launched telescope

A pair of spacewalking Russian cosmonauts installed a new telescope mount on the International Space Station on Thursday, despite a flaw in the device.

Fyodor Yurchikhin and Aleksandr Misurkin — making their second spacewalk in under a week — initially gave up trying to plug in the platform for a yet-to-be-launched telescope. But after more than an hour of discussion at Russian Mission Control, the cosmonauts installed it.

Yurchikhin and Misurkin reported that the base of the platform appeared to be misaligned because it wasn't assembled properly on the ground. The problem could prevent the future telescope from pointing in the right direction.

But engineers near Moscow determined the misalignment could be overcome at a later date.

The swivelling platform will hold an optical telescope that will be launched in November and installed by spacewalking cosmonauts.

The cosmonauts also ran into some difficulty tightening some antenna covers.

Because of a flyaway cover earlier this week, the cosmonauts double-checked the remaining shields to make sure they were secure. At least two were loose, one by a lot.

THE MAN WHO HACKED ZUCKERBERG

Metro World News in London, U.K.

When an unemployed Palestinian programmer named Khalil Shreath hacked into billionaire Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg's personal profile on the social network, the message he posted was respectful. "Dear Mark Zuckerberg," it began, "First sorry for breaking your privacy..."

The 30-year-old from Hebron had discovered a glitch that allowed him to post on any wall on the network. Facebook usually provides $500 US rewards for identifying such a weakness, but did not pay out in Shreath's case, saying that he had violated protocol. In stepped the ethical hacker community, and over $12,000 US has been crowdsourced to reward the Palestinian, who was in a good mood when we spoke.

You could have written anything. Were you tempted to make the message spectacular?

No, because it was a serious vulnerability, but I was forced to write after Facebook ignored my first and second reports. I was frustrated.

Were you angry with Zuckerberg?

I admire Mark, and anyone who starts a project like that. Mark built Facebook in college, it did well, he got famous and everyone would want to be like him. I have a lot of respect.

Does this inspire you to hack more famous people and companies?

I will keep watching for new vulnerabilities and report them, as I have done many times before. I will not break anyone's privacy and hope that every hacker uses what they find the right way and not for the black market.

Is this type of hacking very popular where you're from? Will you inspire more of it?

I can't answer that because intelligence people will come after me (laughs). But many are doing this everywhere. I hope it will inspire not only in Palestine as everybody needs these skills.

How have your friends and family reacted?

I want to say thanks to the hacker community for their donations, I really appreciate it. My family was worried I would be in jail and never have another job, but I thought I was helping people.

What are you planning to do with the money?

You cannot keep money in Palestine — I am very popular now. My family want me to get married, but I don't.

Surveillance. Brazilians say no way to NSA — but cheating app is just fine

Brazilians were outraged when they learned their country was a top target of the U.S. National Security Agency's overseas spying operation, with data from billions of calls and emails swept up in Washington's top-secret surveillance program.

Yet when it comes to spying on philandering lovers, all high-tech weapons appear to be fair game — at least to the tens of thousands of Brazilians who downloaded the Boyfriend Tracker app to their phones before it was removed from the

Google Play app store last week, apparently in response to complaints about privacy abuses and its potential to be used for extortion or even stalking.

Functions include sending the person doing the tracking updates on their partner's location and forwarding duplicates of text message traffic from the targeted phone. There is even a command that allows a user to force the target phone to silently call their own, so they can listen in on what the person is saying. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VOICES

WEEKEND, August 23-25, 2013

BORN IN CALGARY, ATLANTA ...

Some weeks you just have to shake your head.

This is one of those weeks.
1 Sarin insanity. France's foreign minister suspects that the Syrian regime has used sarin nerve gas on its own people at least once, and likely multiple times as the civil war has intensified. It's hard to even think about, never mind look at the heart-breaking pictures of little kids reportedly gassed to death. But look we must.

2 We were bored. Then there's the story out of Duncan, Okla., about three teenagers who allegedly decided to drive by someone and shoot him dead, just for fun. The unlucky random "target" was Chris Lane, a 22-year-old Australian who was out for a jog. Guns don't kill people; they just help the people who do kill people.

THE METRO LIST

3 What a mother. Meanwhile, back in Canada, the grandmother of autistic teen Max Begley got an anonymous letter from a person who signed it "One pissed off mother," complaining about the noises Max makes and demanding that they move out of the neighbourhood or "euthanize him." Police refuse to consider the letter a hate crime, but a love note it ain't. There has been a gratifying outpouring of support for Max since the letter surfaced, but "pissed off mother" has so far eluded justice. She'll have to live with herself, and that can't be fun.

4 The prince of pot. In the same week we learned he'll be a father for the third time, Justin Trudeau, the heir apparent to the national throne, also said he last smoked pot three years ago. There was a time when that admission would have sent any politician's ambitions down in flames (or is that up in smoke?), but it only seems to increase the number of cool colours in his pretty aura.

5 I am NOT a Canadian. Ted Cruz, Texas Republican senator and the latest Tea Party Great Partially Hispanic Hope for President, has a birther problem. He was born in Calgary, which despite some reports, is not in the United States, and holds dual U.S.-Canadian citizenship. Obviously reluctant to invite comparisons to other Canadian politicians such as Justin Trudeau, Cruz has quickly renounced his Canadian citizenship. But if you're born in Calgary, you're one of us, eh?

6 Goodbye, Dickens of Detroit. Elmore Leonard, who apparently could only write bestsellers, including Get Shorty, which was made into a great movie starring Shorty, er, John Travolta, has died at 87. If I had a dog, I'd name it Elmore, even if it was a girl dog. His bark had plenty of bite.

A castle fit for a hedgehog

ALEXANDER ZEMLJANICHENKO JR./THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rare albinos named after Prince George

Three rare albino hedgehog babies, born on the same day as Britain's new prince, have moved into a miniature castle at a Moscow petting zoo.

George, Alexander and Louis are named after the Prince of Cambridge, who has those three names.

On Thursday, when the hedgehogs turned one month old, they were shown into their new home at the All-Russia Exhibition Centre.

It's a wooden castle with carefully carved windows, dark velvet curtains and a plush bed. A red carpet was rolled out to welcome the hedgehog family into the new home.

Zoo spokeswoman Yevgeniya Polonskaya said she hopes the Prince of Cambridge himself would one day visit the hedgehogs, and said they "have a couple of invitations set aside for him."

House of Jealous Lovers? Talk about country of jealous lovers. Brazilians who were once fuming over NSA spying are now doing some spying of their own. The Brazilian-made Boyfriend Tracker app, which has been removed from Google Play, let suspicious partners "check up" on their loved ones. But since BT is a) out of the app store b) in Portuguese and c) for crazy people, why not try some of these consensual stalking apps for couples:

Couple

Synopsis

Nothing ruins a family reunion like an invasion of masked killers. On the occasion of their parents' 35th wedding anniversary, the Davidson kids and assorted significant others gather at a remote Tudor mansion — is there any other type in these kinds of movies? — to enjoy dinner and one another, but instead end up in a fight for their lives. Only one of the guests, Erin (Sharni Vinson), has the know-how to protect herself. But will it be enough?

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Home-invasion horror. Lack of redeeming social values aside, this disturbing movie will have you peeking through your fingers

Richard: Mark, I don't know what it says about me, but I really liked You're Next. It's disturbing, violent and without any redeeming social value, but I enjoyed sitting in the theatre with my hands over my eyes, afraid of what I might see next. I'm not usually a fan of head trauma, but from what I saw as I peeked through my fingers, it worked well. You?

Mark: Richard, I found it one of the best movies of its type ever. Home invasion films are my kind of scary because it could — and does — happen. But I did find some redeeming social value in it. I thought it turned out to be a sly satire on family dynamics and materialism. Without revealing too many plot twists — and I loved them all — this movie starts as one thing and becomes something a little deeper. And, yes, I don't like to admit it, but I was scared through and through.

RC: It's hard to discuss without giving away a major plot twist, but I will say there is a Manson Family aspect to the story that really crept me out. That and the anxiety-inducing John Carpenter style score throbbing in the background. It's all effective but it is the idea behind the movie that is truly disturbing.

MB: Let's not leave out the creepy animal masks! And I learned a lot from the movie, like how much can be accomplished with a two-by-four and a simple set of nails. In fact, I just got back from the hardware store. I'm ready!

RC: It is a lesson in survivalism to be sure, but keep in mind how it works out for everyone. I think I'll stick to calling 911. Lessons aside, I did like that while there are a number of hysterical characters here — who wouldn't be upset when your friends and family are being randomly murdered? — the hero, if you can use that word to describe someone who kills a person with a blender, is a woman. So often in these movies women are the scream queens while the men do the heavy lifting. Here, the only person with any self-preservation instincts is female.

MB: I think a blender is a perfect murder weapon for a woman — very Martha Stewart, in fact. Yes, this movie does have a strong woman at its centre, and it's set up nicely in the beginning, with the family sneering at her for her survivalist training.

Wong Kar Wai takes on the Grandmaster

China's past gets intense makeover. Chinese director gives an action movie spin to the history of modern kung fu with The Grandmaster

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

Chinese filmmaker Wong Kar Wai takes a fantastical look at the history of his nation through the lens of kung fu with The Grandmaster, about Yip Man (Tony Leung), the father of modern kung fu who eventually taught Bruce Lee. But first, according to the film, he had to wrestle with China's changing political climate and go through a lot of gorgeously staged fights.

This film is "inspired by a true story." How much historical accuracy did you go for? It's quite accurate. The only thing I invented was the character of Gong Er (played by Zhang Ziyi). This is a fictional figure, it's not a real person. But in fact this character is based on several remarkable women at that time. When China was going through the changes from the monarchy to the republic, there were a lot of great men, and at the same time there were also remarkable women coming from all walks of life. Before then women were taking a much more minor role. They had to be a good daughter, good wife, good mother, and at that point you see women trying to have their own rights.

The film examines how kung fu used to be incredibly exclusionary — solely an upper class pursuit.

In the traditional sense, martial arts were not for poor people. To practise martial arts you needed to be extremely wealthy because you couldn't do anything else. You had to practise — like, they had specific hours, like three o'clock in the morning and then three o'clock in the afternoon. Not too hot, not too cold. And then there are so many formalities. People visit you, you have to have a big party. When they leave, you have to send them with gifts. All these expenses, it's a big thing.

What does the Chinese film industry make of Hollywood films like Iron Man 3 participating more with the country's filmmaking world and audience? A welcome growth or a threat?

I always find it very silly to say, "As we are invaded by Hollywood" because we've been in this business for a long time. The only thing that's important is to keep the audience coming back to the cinema.

What do you make of the rising importance of the global audience for Hollywood?

Now we see very clearly that the film industry cannot rely on a single market. Even for a Hollywood film, they cannot live on the domestic market alone. They need the international markets. So that's why there's more and more focus on the Chinese market, because it's growing so fast. It becomes a major market for here, for everywhere.

The World's End

Director: Edgar Wright

Stars: Simon Pegg, Nick Frost, Martin Freeman

A teenage pub crawl with four mates was the highlight of Gary King's (Simon Pegg) life. Twenty years later an attempt to relive that past glory becomes less about nostalgia and more about survival when the locals are revealed to be robots. Entertaining and inventive, The World's End isn't as laugh-out-loud funny as the first two parts of director Edgar Wright's trilogy, Shaun of the Dead and Hot Fuzz, but its thematic core — the difficulty of growing up — makes it the most mature of his films.

RICHARD CROUSE

Snakes on a Plane was a scary low on the August horror slate. CONTRIBUTED

August can be a scary month at the cinema

End of summer.

There's something about the entry into fall that leaves us craving freaky flicks

scene@metronews.ca

If the beginning of summer is for big tent-pole blockbusters featuring Hollywood's highest-ranking stars, then August is surely the dumping ground for low-grade horror hokum. Spawning such spine-chilling releases as Cujo, Jeepers Creepers and Fright Night, the eighth month is spookier than sharks in a tornado. Here's some of August's historic horror highs and scary lows:

Horror Highs

Freddy vs. Jason (2003)

This official mash-up of legendary franchises Nightmare on Elm Street and Friday the 13th may not have exactly earned the respect of film critics, but for fans of fright flicks, it was a nightmare-come-true. Plus, there's no denying its $80 million take at the box-office.

Open Water (2003)

Based on a true story, this thriller is a stripped-down seat-shifter about two scuba-divers stranded in shark-infested waters. The actors actually filmed alongside hungry sharks making Open Water, perhaps the only movie less frightening to watch than to star in.

You're Next (in theatres this weekend)

This year's entry into the August annals of horror cinema, You're Next holds much promise. It was picked up in a bidding war after it screened at the Toronto International Film Festival. Favourable early reviews about the thriller's fresh spin on the home invasion add to the optimistic outlook.

Scary Lows

Piranha 3D (2010)

Nobody was expecting this cheesy remake to see Oscar recognition, but the schlocky shocker about a lake terrorized by man-eating piranha is more about skin than scares. When your film's centrepiece is a feeding frenzy during a wet T-shirt contest, August seems like the obvious trash bin for that kind of gratuitous gore.

Snakes on a Plane (2006)

Despite the fact this Samuel L. Jackson thriller became a pop-culture phenomenon long before it hit theatres (thanks to its tacky title), the amphibious flick didn't meet its acquired Internet buzz. Then again, maybe all that pre-release hype just had potential moviegoers thinking "I've had it with hearing about these motherf---ing snakes on this motherf---ing plane."

YOU HAVE BEEN CHOSEN

Breaking Bad ends with tears for creator

Happy ending?

Vince Gilligan talks about bringing the series to a close

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

With Vince Gilligan's groundbreaking Breaking Bad ending its run after 62 episodes, we talked to the brain behind the series about what fans can expect — without giving away too much.

He scrapped the original ending long ago:

"I'm very impressed with J.K. Rowling for knowing where Harry Potter was going to end. That is impressive," he says. "I had ideas, in early going when I was writing the pilot all by myself, of where it would all end, and I discarded them pretty quickly once I hired my six writers. This last year, in fact, where we knew we had these final 16 episodes, we went through many, many possibilities. In fact, we went through every possibility we could think of because we didn't want to leave any stone unturned. We wanted to think of every possible outcome. That's why it took way longer than I thought it would take."

Writing the finale brought tears to his eyes:

"I cried because it was over. I was in my condo in Albuquerque, writing the very last page of the last episode — I was writing the very last paragraph, in fact — and I started to tear up," he remembers. "It was because I knew that is it. I was never going to get to write that character again. I mean, not on Breaking Bad. It was a hard-fought battle, and it was a result of thousands and thousands of hours of work and emotion, and I teared up because as hard as it was those six years, I knew in that moment I was going to be very sad it was over. And I was and I am sad. But I feel right that it ended when it did, creatively."

There won't be a movie:

"I'd be very surprised. Every show is different, and I think it's wonderful when there's a movie version of a TV show," he says. "But I always felt for this one show, for Breaking Bad, that it would be a bit of an injustice to the show itself, to what we were trying to build all these years, for it to end in a fashion that didn't feel complete and satisfying on the small screen. We're leaving it all on the field with these final eight episodes."

It doesn't have to end poorly for everyone:

"I have to be careful the way I answer these questions, because I don't want to ruin anything for anybody, but I can tell you that the writers and I, we're not out to punish any character," he offers. "There's the old saying that it's very easy to extract emotion from an audience by being mean to a child or beating a puppy with a stick or something. We were not trying to go for those kind of feelings. We looked at these episodes as our last chance to end the story in as satisfying a manner as possible. The best answer I can give is that I'm very satisfied by the ending. That is not to say it's a happy ending, nor a sad ending — nor to give any promise of how one will feel emotionally when it's over. But it is to say that I hope it feels proper. Fitting. It feels fitting to me."

J. Crew

File this one under 'Huh, OK'

J. Crew CEO Mickey Drexler will have a small cameo on this Sunday's episode of Breaking Bad. Look for him as a customer in Walter White's car wash, if that's the sort of thing you would find exciting to look for.

So how did this synergy between the decidedly unglamorous Breaking Bad and preppy mother ship J. Crew come about? Apparently, Drexler had a meeting with some Sony Television producers, and when they learned that he was obsessed with the show, they insisted that he make an appearance.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Brandy's ego bruised as she plays to empty stadium

Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Poor Brandy. The singer performed to an empty, 90,000-capacity stadium last weekend in Johannesburg, South Africa, as part of the Man-del Sports & Culture Day. Due to poor publicity, the crowd left after the football and rugby matches, not realizing — or maybe they did? — that Brandy was set to perform. Per the tweet of @Kabomo, a South African musician, "Brandy performed to an empty stadium. With the stadium lights on. She sulked after two songs and walked off." Which, you know, is more than I would have done. I would have looked out and hightailed it to a bar where I would then sit for the next 30 years of my life and think about how it all went wrong.

Kanye faces lawsuit after allegedly punching paparazzo

Kanye West is facing a lawsuit from a paparazzo over allegedly attacking him outside Los Angeles International Airport, according to TMZ. Plaintiff Daniel Ramos claims that "without warning or provocation," West "suddenly attacked, punching (the plaintiff) and attempting to wrestle the camera from" Ramos' hands, according to the filing. Ramos' attorney, Gloria Allred, claims that Ramos fell to his knees on the ground "with enough force that he sustained injuries to his right hip, as well as accompanying pain and emotional distress." He is seeking unspecified damages.

Hot dogs must hate hamburgers. Though they're the yin and yang of the home barbecue scene, take a step off your deck and gourmet burgers are selling for a premium at fancy boutique restos while dogs are relegated to the kids menu.

Not that hot dogs can't hold their own when it comes to haute cuisine. In my mind, the whole concept of a meal in an elongated bun was designed for getting creative with elaborate toppings (and I'm not just talking ketchup).

Finding a wine that will stand strong against a barrage of eclectic flavours piled on top of a well-cooked wiener is a challenge worthy of The Amazing Race.

I like the versatility of the moscato grape. Originating in Italy, it's synonymous with a slightly sweet style of white wine that's become the darling of wine-makers the world over.

Australians love it, and Jacob's Creek 2012 Moscato ($9.95 to $13.49) offers a mix of melon and pineapple that's a perfect foil for anything a spicy, sharp, salty or sweet layer across your designer dog. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Keep it as cool as a cucumber

This recipe serves six. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Have you noticed how big and bold and robust salads have become? It's as though salads no longer can be content to be on the side and complement the rest of the meal.

Most recipes these days seem to insist the salad be the meal. Which can be nice, particularly in the heat of summer. But sometimes a salad needs to play another role. Sometimes it just needs to help us appreciate the other foods. That's where this Pressed Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream comes in.

1. Slice both cucumbers and the onion as thinly as possible, then mix them together in a large bowl. Sprinkle the salt over the vegetables.

2. Using your hands, gently knead and press the vegetables. Don't crush or mash them, just gently work the vegetables in the bowl.

3. After 2 to 4 minutes of kneading, there should be a large amount of water in the bowl. Pour off and discard the water.

4. Stir in the sour cream, dill, lemon zest and juice, garlic powder and black pepper. The salad can be made up to 4 hours in advance. If so, prepare the dressing separately and refrigerate in a separate container from the cucumbers. Just before serving, drain the cucumbers again, then mix in the dressing.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 2 large English cucumbers
- 1 small red onion
- 1 tsp salt
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsp chopped fresh dill
- Zest and juice of 1/2 lemon
- 1/2 tsp garlic powder

PUT WASTE IN ITS PLACE

Moynihan brothers don't have any regrets

Part of the Herd.
Pair sacrifice NCAA eligibility to join Mooseheads

andrew.rankin@metronews.ca

The Moynihan brothers had slightly different approaches arriving at the Halifax Mooseheads training camp this month.

For the younger sibling, 16-year-old Connor, he was preparing to sign with the Herd if given the opportunity. Daniel, 17, was a little less sure about giving up his NCAA eligibility.

After all, the Windham, N.H., natives saw their uncle Ryan Moynihan play Division I hockey with Cornell. Their dad, who also dreamed of playing in the league, was hoping his boys would follow in Ryan's footsteps.

But things changed when the forwards hit the ice at Cole Harbour Place, the Herd's training-camp facility.

The boys, who made the trip with their parents, felt an immediate fit.

Quoted

"I love it. The guys are great, coaches are awesome and I love the rink. I can't wait for the season opener."

Mooseheads forward Daniel Moynihan

More action

- The Halifax Mooseheads are back in action this weekend as pre-season play continues.
- On Friday in Truro at 7 p.m., Halifax will take on the Moncton Wildcats. On Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Moncton Coliseum, the Mooseheads and Wildcats will square off again. Halifax is 2-0 so far in exhibition play.

"It's a slower game here," Daniel said. "Where we come from it's more chip, slash, playing full speed. Here it's about slowing down the play, making the right plays and passes, getting to the right spots. It's more professional."

Connor, a six-foot-three 205-pounder, says he felt privileged joining the reigning Memorial Cup champions.

"We're trying out for a Memorial Cup champion team. We knew it was going to be real tough," said the Mooseheads' 2013 fifth-round pick.

Brothers Daniel, left, and Connor Moynihan are eager to get things going with the Halifax Mooseheads this season.

ANDREW RANKIN/METRO

They signed with the Herd last Saturday.

That afternoon, Connor stepped up in the Mooseheads' impressive pre-season opener against the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles. Pushing the pace at both ends of the ice, he finished with a goal and an assist in the Mooseheads' 7-3 victory, while his brother chipped in with a helper.

In Sunday's rematch, Daniel followed suit with a goal and an assist of his own in the Herd's 3-2 victory.

While Daniel plays more of a finesse game, Connor loves being physical, likening his style to that of the Boston Bruins' Milan Lucic.

They believe the Mooseheads will be the team to beat this season.

"We're excited. We have a really strong, team, I think," Connor said.

They insist there will be no sibling rivalry. Well, not during the hockey season, anyway.

"Once we get back home I might let him know that I got more goals than him," Daniel said with a laugh.

Price tag keeps Team Canada off ice: Yzerman

Insurance costs.
Potential Team Canada players will settle for information sessions and bonding activities

Steve Yzerman would prefer to get Canada's players on the ice at the upcoming orientation camp for the Olympic men's hockey team.

But the price tag to insure players against injury is too high for Hockey Canada, so the four-day camp starting on Sunday in Calgary will consist of informational meetings about the Games in Sochi, Russia, and fostering team chemistry off the ice.

"Not going on the ice isn't the end of the world," said Yzerman, the executive director of the national men's team. "There's a lot of other things that need to be done in preparation, logistically going through how

Ko takes share of lead in title defence

Lydia Ko is back on top of the Canadian Women's Open leaderboard.

The 16-year-old Ko, the winner last year at Vancouver Golf Club at an LPGA Tour-record age of 15 years, 4 months, shot a 5-under 65 on Thursday in perfect conditions at Royal Mayfair in Edmonton for a share of the first-round lead with Angela Stanford and the Netherlands' Christel Boeljon.

Ko, the South Korean-born New Zealander, had six birdies and a bogey. She birdied the opening hole, though she figured that might be a bad omen.

"When I start off with a birdie I haven't really played that well, so yeah, I was kind of nervous that I did make a birdie on the first," she said.

Hernandez indicted on murder charge

A Massachusetts grand jury has indicted former New England Patriot Aaron Hernandez on a first-degree murder charge in the death of a man whose bullet-riddled body was found in an industrial park near his home.

The grand jury returned the indictment on Thursday.

It charges Hernandez with the killing of 27-year-old Odin Lloyd, a semi-professional football player who was dating the sister of Hernandez's girlfriend.

Hernandez pleaded not guilty to murder and weapons charges in June.

He could face life in prison if convicted.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

A colleague may be a bit pushy today and your first instinct will be to push back. Don't. It will be counter-productive, not least because they have more power than you. Stay calm and fit in with their needs.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Are you working too hard? According to the planets you are and the best thing you can do today is take an hour off from your schedule to review what you are trying to achieve.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

This should be a wonderful time for you and if it isn't, it soon will be. A few days from now, your world will be turned on its head and you'll be standing the right way up!

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Family issues will take up a lot of your time today and the sooner you deal with them, the sooner you will be free to do your own thing. Loved ones won't be as difficult to talk to as you appear to believe.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You need to get out more. Short trips will be especially beneficial today and over the weekend. You may encounter one or two less than friendly people but you will meet many more who delight you.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Mercury, your ruler, joins the Sun in your sign today, making this potentially one of the best long weekends of the year. Personally and professionally you'll soon be moving ahead.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

The thing you fear most is the thing you should be doing the most. That may not be what you want to hear but there it is. Once you take that first step, the rest will come easy.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You sometimes expect too much of yourself and then feel depressed when your efforts fall short. If so you feel that now, lower your expectations and learn to live with who you are.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

If you get the chance to join forces with like-minded people today, take it. Yes, you may have to give up some freedom but in return you'll get the opportunity to change the world.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

With Mercury, planet of the mind, joining the Sun in one of the best areas of your chart, you have a clear idea what it is you want to accomplish — and the personal and professional tools to make it happen.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The planets urge you to think the unthinkable today. But keep in mind that thinking and doing do not always go together at the same time. The more you think now, the more success you will enjoy later.

Pisces

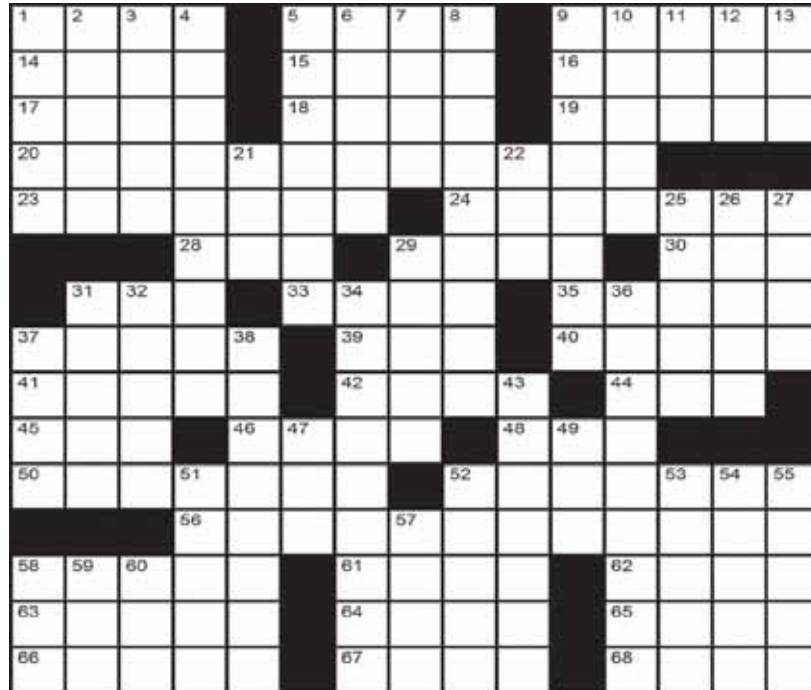

Feb. 20 - March 20

You like to see the best in people but the planets warn that today you should operate on the assumption that no one is on your side. It may not be true but you cannot afford to take chances. SALLY BROMPTON
